

March 2010

Greetings from Long Beach!

I always tell my friends what a great place Midland is. If I had children, they would go to Midland. Most of what I know about Biology today came from Mr. Munger. Without D.B. Anderson, I wouldn't have this reverence for literature that I cherish so much. And Sherman Herrick was my personal role model (along with Mr. Munger, of course). I had him for Geometry. Carlos Ortiz taught me Spanish which I still use. The point is that I didn't learn much about these subjects after Midland, and yet I still have a good working knowledge of them, even by adult standards. That's what a high-school education is supposed to be: a preparation for adulthood.

Rock On Midland!
